Destroying Diphtheria Germs.

A writer in The Medical Magazine who has witnessed the Berlin method of disinfecting a room describes the cleansing of an apartment in which a child had died of diphtheria: "Four men were engaged. After everything that could be subjected to steam without detriment had been removed to the disinfecting station all the things were removed from the walls, and the men began rubbing them with bread. Ordinary German loaves are used, 45 hours old. The loaves are cut into substantial chunks about six inches square, the back of each piece consisting of the crust, thus allowing of a good purchase. The walls are systematically attacked with strokes from above downward, and there can be no question as to its efficacy in cleaning them, nor does the operation take as long as one would imagine. The rooms are swept up and loured. After this the walls are thoroughly sprinkled with a 3 per cent carbolic acid solution. The floor is washed with a 3 per cent carbolic acid solution, and all the polished woodwork and ornaments as well."

Mrs. Mary Johnson Turns Her Three Babies Over to the Orphan's Home.

Poor Commissioner Hale took three little unfortunate children to the Orphan's home yesterday. They were the children of Mr. and Mrs. Preston Johnson, who were divorced last week by Judge Hazen. Mrs. Johnson was given the custody of the children, and as she is too poor to provide for them, she turned them over to the county. She lives on Lawrence street, Parkside. Yesterday, according to previous arrangement, Mrs. Johnson called at the poor commissioner's office with the three children. Pretty children they were, as anybody could want. They are two, four and six years old, respectively. The youngest is a bright little youngster two years old, just old enough to toddle about and crawl. The other two children are lively and curly haired.

Although contrary to all canons of taste and propriety suitable to the occasion, Mrs. Johnson turned the children over to the officer without a tear or a tremor. Mr. Hale took them to the Orphan's home in his buggy. Mr. Hale says that about five years ago Mrs. Johnson gave her oldest child to a highly respected family in Topeka. She is now a beautiful girl in school, and greatly loved by her adopted parents.

K. S. U. FEES.

The Students File Their Case in the Supreme Court.

A suit has been filed in the supreme court on relation of the attorney general to test the authority of the regents of the State University to charge fees for the use of the law library and laboratory at the university.

A short time ago Chancellor Snow posted on the university bulletin board a notice to the effect that Attorney General Kellogg in 1889 having given it as his opinion that these fees could be collected, and the attorney general having recently said they could not be collected and Judge S. O. Thatcher, Samuel Riggs and Dean Green of the law school giving it as their opinion that the fees could be collected, all patrons of the library would be expected to pay the fixed fees.

Some of the law students are back of the case filed and it is proposed to place an agreed statement of facts before the supreme court and have the matter decided without making any costs.

London's Lady Guides.

In London they say that the lady guide has come to stay. She supplies a want—not only one, but several. People find her useful. They ask her to meet their children at stations, escort them to dentists and support them when there. They beg her to recommend them to dressmakers as well as to take their country cousins for an instructive tour of the sights. The lady guide is the woman to take the domestic helm at a crisis, and, as in the turmoil of London life there are many crises, there are now, it is delightful to learn, many guides.

There are so many guides indeed and so many persons asking for a man that a west end branch of the office has been opened at 105 Regent street. The opening was attended by a little ceremony. Countess Grosvenor gracefully played the part of leading lady on the occasion, declaring the premises open and wishing all success to the venture. Thereafter came an address from the energetic proprietor, Miss Edith A. Davis, who traced the history of the movement from the humble opening of the office to its removal to the existing central premises at 352 Strand and now this added branch.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Correct Things in Stationery.

Legal line stationery is much affected by smart women, that with pale gray or cream white being oftenest seen at their well equippedavenport. The correspondence card of two or three years ago has wholly disappeared—why, no one can tell, as it had its uses certainly. Tiny sheets of paper, with envelopes to fit, like that which supplies the desks of little girls, serve for short notes, or, if it is only a line miffing would send, she takes one of her visiting cards and scrawls it on that. This is occasionally a pitfall to the ignorant woman, who forgets that the formal Mrs. or Miss engraved there is not the proper signature to a message to a friend and equal. The woman who knows never forgets to draw a line through the title, writing her Christian name in ink there or putting her message on the plain side of the card, and regularly signs her name.

Mourning stationery no longer takes on inches of black to advertise the woe of its sender. A narrow black margin is considered sufficient for even first use in mourning.—New York Times.

As True as Gospel.

A married man wails thus: "Nothing maddens me more than to attempt to read the paper to my wife."

"I sit down and begin—it's always something interesting—and she'll be seated for a minute or two. Then she'll rise and say: "Go right ahead, dear. I can hear every word."

"Then she'll prance into the next room and tinkle and tinkle with things on the mantel or the bureau while I raise my voice and have to read out some paragraph that loses all its sense by that means."

"Then she'll disappear again, and I'll hear her voice come out in muffled tones from the clothes closet: "Wait a minute, dear; I'll be back."

"But I don't wait."

"I put on my hat and go down town and read to myself all the way."—New York Recorder.

A Great Financier.

The somewhat impetuous young man had married the daughter of the rich legislator so much against the father's will that he had left them to shift for themselves.

"Your wife's father," remarked a friend one day to the young man, "is a great old financier."

"Yes, but he is no statesman."

"Is that so?"

"Of course, for when I married his daughter he denounced her, and we've had hard times ever since."—Detroit Free Press.

CLEVELAND'S ANKLE HURT

The President's Gout Foot is Injured so Walking is Painful.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—The regular Tuesday cabinet meeting did not occur today owing to the absence of President Cleveland, although all of the cabinet officers were in the city ready to attend. When returning to his home at Woodley last evening from a walk the president tripped on a small stone, which rolled away, causing a sprain of one ankle.

The sprain was slight, but because it was sustained by the foot which has been afflicted by gout, it was so painful that walking was not easy. Therefore the president did not come into town this morning.

Mrs. Cleveland drove in and informed the members of the cabinet that the president was coming along nicely, but that as walking was still painful, and there was no present need of his coming to the White house, he would not undertake the trip.
